"This book came from the notion of remaking, in the same order, everything that I had written and published during the 1990s... As this idea crystallised—of going back a set distance and then proceeding towards the present—the retrospective view of the work seemed new, that the familiar, the already done, had now become completely different. Along with unpublished work, much of the material had been made available in a distinct variety of separate formats. The project of reformatting became one of unifying and integrating inside a standardised layout. Within the sequence, the links and relationships between one part and another became significant, a pageby-page process of both arrangement and manipulation; and apart from the occasional minor revision little has been added by way of annotation or commentary beyond what was already written at the time..."
