“He lived in style in the spacious house he had designed in a quiet Zurich suburb, and took great delight in driving one of his several expensive motor cars, especially the Rolls Royce in which he would travel to the parliament building in Berne.”

Max Bill, 1908–94, obituary, The Independent.

“Was there ever a person who so calculated and ordered his household economy so that he could engage in greater enterprises? He was a shopper of legendary determination and thoroughness, whether searching for the cheapest can of baked beans or some photographic equipment.”

Li Yuan-Chi, 1929–94, obituary, The Independent.
